trustees several important decisions were made as to the opening and arrangements of the new library. The dedica-tion exercises will be held in Music Hall about the middle of October. After these public exercises, everyone will be invited to visit and inspect the new building, which will then be completed, and in good order for inspection. The work of removing und arranging the books will take some little time, and all books will be called in, so that they may be looked over, and repaired or replaced if neccessary. About $400 worth of new books are to be added. It is expected Mrs. H. Duston will continue as librarian for the present, and Theodore Parker will be the janitor.

FARM BREVITIES Thousands of acres are still mowed with a scythe where a horse mower might be used. Rocks and roughness cut no figure with the modern mower properly handled. Here is a good pointer to remember: When the tools are put away for the winter let them be scraped, wiped dry and greased. Look out for pear blight. Promptly

See that your fowls have a plentiful supply of water if you would have healthy ones and enough grit to enable them to grind up well all that goes into the gizzard. During the hot weather be careful of the colt teams. They are more easily injured than mature horses.

The beauty side of farming should never be lost sight of. Let the farmer and each member of the family do something each year toward making the farm more beautiful and attractive as a home. There is no place on earth where a more attractive home may be built than out in the country on the farm. And how many there are that live there that lose sight of this fact! They do not seem to see the natural beauties that are all about them.

The distinction between a good preacher and a bad preacher has not changed much since Archbishop Whately declared that "a good preacher preached because he had something to say and a bad preacher because he had to say something."

Why They Preach.

Vulgarity No Irish Trait.

There are certain nations that have the quality of vulgarity strongly in the blood, and indeed it seems to testify to a strong and full blooded vitality, a desire for self assertion, and thus we may expect to find vulgarity dogging like a shadow the footsteps of strong, capable and pushing nationalities. But there are certain nations that have been accused of many faults that yet have never been accused of being vulgar. The Irish are a case in point. They have been accused of levity, of undue conviviality, of frivolity, of a tendency to romance, of untrustworthiness, of irresponsibility, but they have never been accused of vulgarity. There lies deep in the Celtic temperament a rich vein of emotion, a strong relish for the melancholy side of life. It is on this that their incomparable sense of humor is based, and it may be said that no one who feels at home with melancholy, who luxuriates in the strange contrast between the possibilities and the performances of humanity, is in any danger of vulgarity, for one of the essential components of vulgarity is a complacent self satisfaction, and if a man is apt to dwell regretfully on what might have been rather than cheerfully upon what is there is but little room for complacency .- A. C. Benson in Atlantic

The British Tonstmaster. The British banquet differs from the American only in that the chairman presides, but does not keep order or announce the toasts. That is attended to by a professional toastmaster, who is a large person with a volcanic voice. While the guests are assembling he stands at the doorway and announces the names of the arrivals, who are then greeted by the chairman and passed into the push. When the guests are seated he takes up his station behind the chair of the presiding officer and commands order in these terms: "My lords and gentlemen, I pray you silence. We will now listen to the toast to his imperial majesty the German emperor, responded to by his excellency the lord chancellor." For the rest the speeches drawl and drag, as in New York, with now and then a sparkle of wit or a flash of mental energy, usually from some unexpected quarter. The turtle soup is no better than ours. Protection For Swimmers. "Cotton in the ears," said a physician, "should be used by all those who swim out beyond their depth. You know how often good swimmers of that type drown, don't you? Their drowning is imputed to cramp, but cut out every diseased twig or branch. | you will never find one of the drown-Eternal vigilance is the price of pear | ed with his ears stuffed with cotton. Why? I'll tell you why. Because it isn't cramp that causes these drownings. It is a perforation of the eardrum, followed by unconsciousness, due to the pressure of the water. Cramp isn't, after all, the deadly thing it is made out to be. If you get a cramp in your leg while swimming it is easy enough to roll over on your back and float. The cramp won't kill you. But a perforation of the eardrum is different. It takes away your senses, and down you go like a log. So always, if you are going to do much swimming, stuff cotton in your ears."-New York Press.

Keen Sense of Humor.

"There is nothing like a sense of humor," said a naval officer, according to the Philadelphia Bulletin. "In a woman, in a soldier, in a sailor, in a clerk, a sense of humor is a help and a blessing through life. At the same time even a sense of humor may exist wise precaution to send after it a in excess. I, for my part, shouldn't care to have so great a sense of humor as a British soldier I once heard about. This soldier was ordered to be flogged. During the flogging he laughed continually. The lash was laid on all the harder, but under the rain of blows the soldier laughed.

"'What are you laughing at?' the sergeant finally asked. "'Why,' the soldier chuckled, T'm the wrong man."

An Arab Fishing Yarn,

A fishing yarn from Algiers: "Some Arabs were fishing from a boat with lines off the coast when a dolphin seventeen feet long, eleven feet in circumference and weighing four tons swallowed one of the baited hooks and dashed off at a tremendous speed. The fishermen paid out as much line as possible and then made it fast. This brought the dolphin up sharply, but the strain snapped the line. The monster then attacked the boat and capsized it, flinging the fishermen into the water. Other Arabs ashore waited till the dolphin was clear of the men and then killed it with rifles,"
